

200 years

of Occupational Safety and Health at your fingertips

HISTORYOFOSH.ORG.UK

Have you ever wondered how the UK became one of the safest places in the world to go to work?

Numerous pieces of legislation have been introduced over more than 200 years, covering a wide array of different industries, but their shared aim has been to ensure that workers can go home to their families safe and healthy at the end of each day.

Here you'll find the 1802 Factory Act all the way through to the most recent regulatory changes made by the Health and Safety Executive (HSE) with a continuously updated timeline.

A wealth of information for those wishing to track the development of occupational safety and health, for teaching or studying for professional or academic qualifications or carrying out other research, showing how this area has been at the heart of the UK's industrial history.

An invaluable resource for:

- Students
- Lecturers
- Health and safety professionals
- Policy makers
- Anyone with a general interest in social and industrial history visit...

www.historyofosh.org.uk

If you would like to make a contribution to the website, please contact Sheila Pantry: sp@sheilapantry.com
(A member of the RoSPA National Occupational Safety & Health Committee)